CCUIH to Create Tribal Law Compendium

We are thrilled to share that our partner, California Consortium for Urban Indian Health \(CCUIH\), will be creating a compendium of tribal laws. A tribal laws compendium will be helpful for unrepresented Indigenous survivors of abuse, the advocates who support them, and for tribal lawyers. The announcement of this exciting project comes on the heels of the United States Supreme Court decision to uphold expansive tribal court jurisdiction in Sharp v. Murphy, allowing the Creek Nation to prosecute non-Indians for domestic violence and other serious crimes committed on their tribal territory. We hope that the development of the compendium will be helpful to other tribal nations looking to advocate for more protections for survivors of abuse and that this and the success in Sharp v. Murphy open more avenues to justice for Indigenous survivors.

Housing Toolkit for Survivors Translated into 4 Languages

Our Helping Survivors Obtain Housing Toolkit was just translated into 4 new languages: Arabic, Hmong, Russian, and Spanish. These versions are available now in our Legal Resource Library. We want to thank WEAVE for translating this toolkit and being a partner in helping broaden access to practical and important resources like this one for survivors.

With domestic violence being a leading cause of homelessness and housing insecurity in the United States, FVAP's Housing & Employment Justice Program aims to support survivors by providing resources and tools, like the Helping Survivors Obtain Housing Toolkit, and representing survivors on housing- or employment-related appeals, so that the crisis of abuse is not compounded by housing or employment instability, or loss.

An Update on Supporting Survivors During COVID

During this unprecedented time, we are grateful we have been able to obtain publication of 3 cases this year that have set legal precedent to help survivors looking for legal protection from their abusers.

Unfortunately, the pandemic has made it easier for abusers to cause harm, with some research showing rates of domestic violence increasing from 12-20% in the United States, though increased rates of domestic violence during the pandemic is a global problem.

With courts starting to reopen in some counties in California, survivors are able to seek court orders to prevent ongoing abuse of them and their children. We are starting to see an increase in requests for help and working to support as many survivors as we can.

We are also keeping the effects of COVID front of mind as we produce written and video resources for survivors and those who support them, and as we begin to represent new clients looking to appeal.

If you support the work we are doing, we encourage you to give to our cause if you are able.

Spotlight: Craig Stewart

This month we're putting the spotlight on Craig E. Stewart, who is a Partner at Jones Day and leads their Issues & Appeals Practice in California. Craig has been a tremendous support to FVAP as an Advisory Board member providing invaluable advice. He has co-counseled with FVAP on several matters, including N.T. v. H.T. \(2019\), which established precedent for survivors of domestic violence who have had requests for long-term restraining orders denied when a temporary restraining order was violated by their abuser. Craig has also been a mentor to FVAP attorneys on brief-writing and appellate procedure. Thank you, Craig, for all of your support!

Educating to End Domestic Violence

FVAP continues to provide trainings on domestic violence and appeals during this time. In the last several months, we have tailored trainings to address specific issues that are coming up because of the pandemic. Last month, we presented on the impact COVID-19 has had on survivors of domestic abuse from marginalized communities at the 8th Annual Cultural Competency in Family Law Practice Seminar, which had the highest number of attendees to date, including more than 40 Judicial Officers (active and retired), 120 Family Law Attorneys, 12 Mental health Professionals from across the State, and 10 Law Students from 3 states.

While these times are particularly difficult for survivors, we are heartened by the number of participants who attended this training and the diversity among them because survivors have their best chance at justice when the field is informed.
